

busy pediatric day. Modern concepts of diagnosis and treatment and identification of the important pediatric hematological problems are well covered. There is a wide range of subject matter including neonatal jaundice, iron deficiency anemia, hemolytic anemia and severe disease entities such as leukemia. The book is written in such a way that it is extremely easy to read. It is comparatively simple to arrive at the meat of a problem rapidly.

Dr. Smith has also taken a good deal of time to incorporate excellent photographs in appropriate places to bring to the reader a visual impression of the conditions he is describing.

All in all this book is highly recommended as an important tool in the office or laboratory of all physicians conscientiously interested in the care of infants and children.

DAN FERIOZI, M.D.
